

INVITATION TO GRAFENEGB CASTLE

WORLD CONGRESS OF MUSIC THERAPY 2014

Friday, July 11, 2014 6:00 p.m.

"The healing properties of music are a significant topic in a country with a rich cultural heritage like Austria. In 2008, Austria became the first country worldwide to introduce statutory regulations for the music therapy profession.

The fourteenth World Congress of Music Therapy is being staged in Lower Austria and will once again take an in-depth look at the enthralling question of how music affects human health and wellbeing.

Research on music therapy takes place at the intersection of medicine, art and interpersonal relationships. Proof of the efficacy of music therapy in the interplay between these highly complex areas is essential, and must satisfy the standards of the medical profession, as well as personal quality expectations of the healing effects of music therapy treatments.

In order to achieve this breakthrough, it is vital to consider the diverse range of cultural factors that have an impact on research approaches.

For this reason, the motto of this year's event is "Cultural Diversity". We wish you an enjoyable and inspirational conference!"
